

SHORE SPORTS

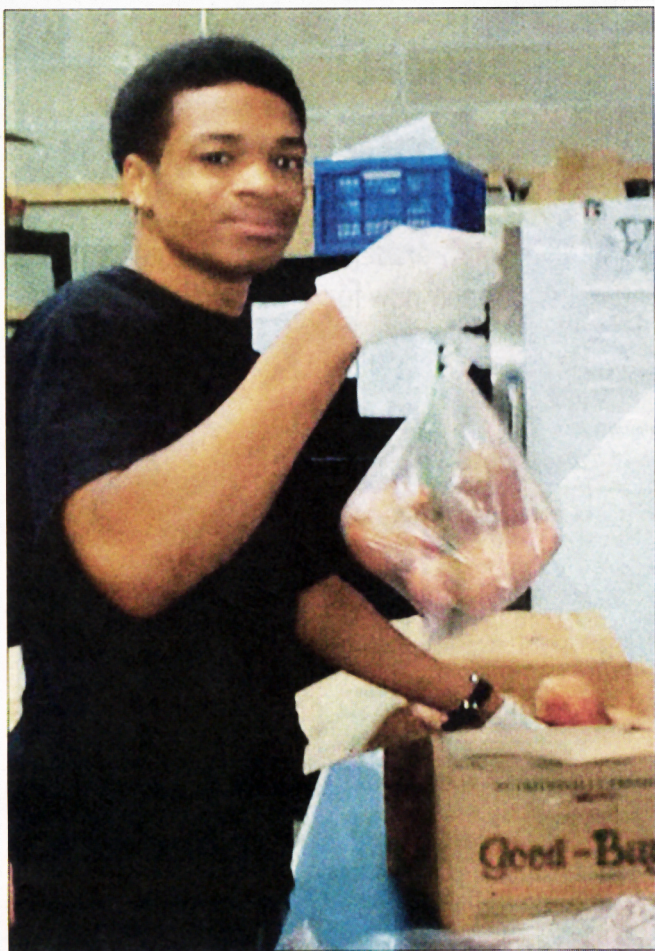

PHOTO COURTESY OF WAGNER COLLEGE

Freshman defensive back T.J. Frederick was one of the eight Seahawks who took part in a community service program.

Wagner football players give back to community

Help package food for Community Health Action

STATEN ISLAND ADVANCE

GRYMES HILL — Eight members of the Wagner College football team, working in partnership with the Community Health Action of Staten Island, recently donated four hours of their time packaging food to be distributed to more than 30 needy families.

The Community Health Action of Staten Island (formerly the Staten Island AIDS Task Force), is a non-profit, community-based organization that educates Staten Islanders about HIV and AIDS and advocates for HIV-positive people.

The organization's mission is to improve the lives of individuals, families and communities challenged by health disparities related to poverty, discrimination and lack of access through direct service, education and advocacy.

For more information about the organization, log onto www.chasin-y.org.