

Staten Island Advance

YOUR CONNECTION TO OUR COMMUNITY silive.com

CITY HALL

New to the fleet

The city will get a new Staten Island Ferry with money earmarked in capital funds in the mayor's preliminary budget. Page A 10

ELM PARK

Opening on hold

Chef Adam Lener hoped for a Jan. 21 debut of Angry Taco, but now it looks more likely to open in a couple of weeks. Page A 6

GRYMES HILL

College tuition workshop

Applying for college can be a scary prospect. Finding ways to pay for it can be even scarier.

But high school seniors can get a jump-start in learning how to navigate the financial aid process by attending College Goal NY at Wagner College, Grymes Hill, on Jan. 30 at 10 a.m. in Spiro Hall.

The snow date is scheduled for Feb. 6.

Volunteer administrators will guide students as they fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

The online application can be completed on the spot. Registration is required. To register and for a complete list of documents needed to fill out the FAFSA, visit collegegoalny.org.

CITY HALL

Vision Zero: Island D.A.'s office gets an 'F'

Advocacy group: It has shown 'outright disregard' for pedestrian safety

By Vincent Barone
vbarone@siadvance.com

Vision Zero advocates have denounced the Staten Island district attorney's office for its "outright disregard" for pedestrian safety in 2015.

The office received an "F" letter grade in Transportation Alternatives' annual "Vision Zero Report Card," which offers grades and criticism of officials and agencies that are "responsible for preventing traffic fatalities and injuries on city streets."

"Until January 2016, the Staten Island district attorney's office was managed with an outright disregard for the number of people killed and injured on local streets," the report reads. "As a result, while every other borough has brought about significant reductions in pedestrian fatalities in the past 30 years, on Staten Island this number has remained largely unchanged, and even increased in 2015."

The transit advocacy group ranked the Staten Island district attorney's office as the SEE ZERO, PAGE A10

Transportation Alternatives Executive Director Paul Steely White calls for an increased investment in Vision Zero.
(STATEN ISLAND ADVANCE/VINCENT BARONE)

ILLUSTRATION FROM

STATEN ISLAND

Luncheon date is changed