

Seen@

Campers from Sunrise Day Camp were treated to a special tour of the Wagner College Planetarium as part of the camp's "Sunrise Sunday" program. In addition to the planetarium tour, campers experienced a full day of activities, including playtime in the gym, lunch and a special musical performance from Wagner's Vocal Synergy group. The Lucille and Jay Chazanoff Sunrise Day Camp is the world's first full-summer day camp for children with cancer and their siblings, provided completely free of charge. The fun, friendship, and smiles continue year-round through various camp-like programs and in-hospital services. Photo courtesy of the JCC

Marking special occasions

With charity balls, grand gourmet galas, lavish luncheons and more looming large this time of year, community-spirited Staten Islanders continue to savor their eagerly anticipated events with photos.

And with iPhones always within easy reach — and taking group selfies such fun — photos are plentiful.

In the Staten Island Advance's newest feature, Seen@, we recognize those making merry at a myriad of events.

This week's Seen@ features photos from a handful of events, including campers from Sunrise Day Camp taking a special tour of the Wagner College Planetarium, Richmond University Medical Center's 2019 Nurse of Distinction award ceremony and more. Head over to SILive.com for more photos. Want to contribute? Email benanti@siadvance.com.